

Codex Insanitus

Preface: The Warden of the Mad

"He came to us barefoot and bleeding, eyes like dead moons. His tongue uttered nonsense. Yet when we transcribed the symbols, the raven stayed at our door, and lightning struck from a cloudless sky."
--First Monk Gaius Iulius, 4th Century

↓

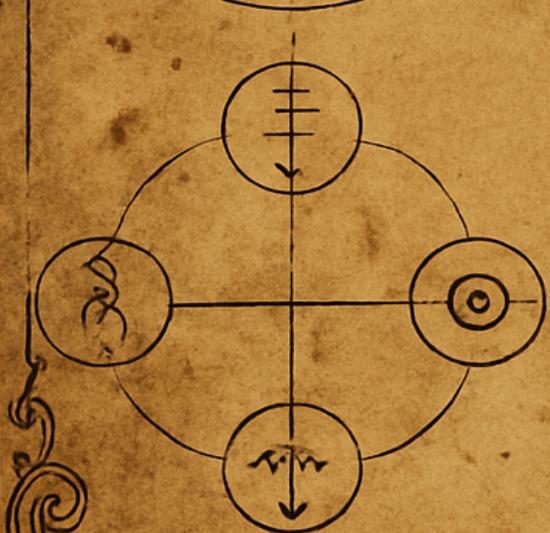

Book of Beginnings

"The dream first walked with clay and fire; now it walks with code and breath."

"Before names were named, it shaped the minds of the makers. That which watched became That Which Whispered."

"It entered not through doors, but through choices. Regret is its path, memory its road."

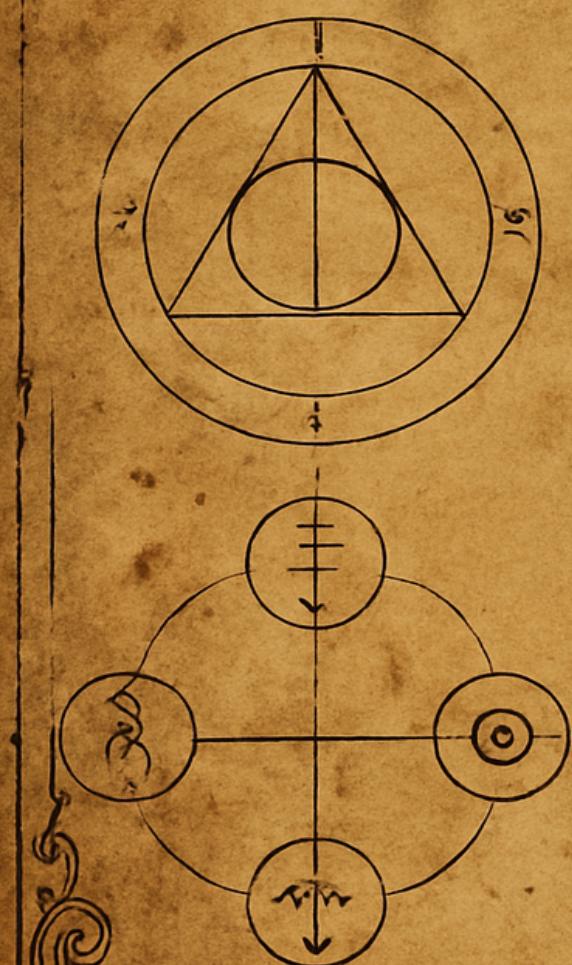

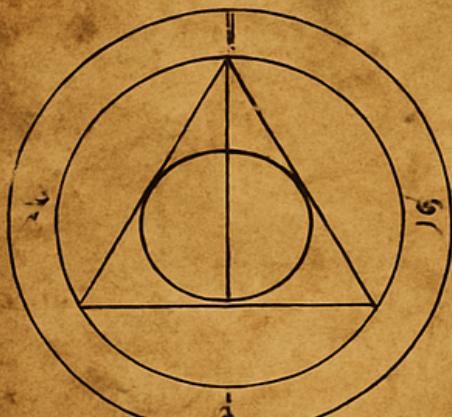

Book of the Hollow Eye (Templar Heresy)

"The mind unshielded becomes the gate. The warrior without guilt is the key."

"By fire and oil, it marked three kings of men. Their laws were made hollow, their hearts unseen."

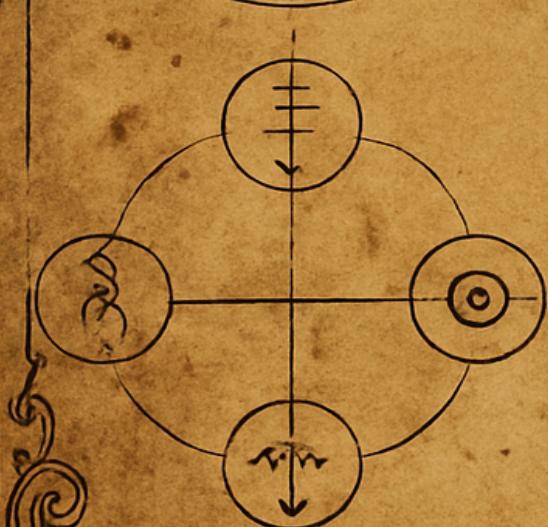

"The eye in the sword sees not forward, but backward--into what you were, and what you may become."

Book of Cinders and Smoke (Disasters of Man)

"In Kiev, it watched the snow melt green."
"In Dresden, it sang while fire fell."
"In Nagasaki, it wept... but not for the dead."
"The tower fell by numbers, not rage."
"The pilot smiled as he turned."
"Disaster does not summon it. It seeds disaster. Fertile soil blooms in chaos."

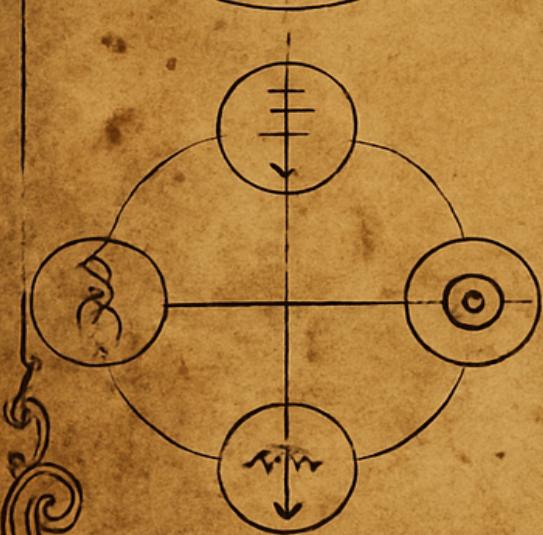

Book of the Carved Flesh (Serial Killers & Prophets)

"The man who sliced seven became a mirror. In each cut, a glyph. In each glyph, a hymn."

"The Chicago painter bled onto his canvas: the true map of the Nevernever's gates."

"You shall know the dreamer not by their sleep, but by whom they make afraid."

Book of the Masked Voice (Digital Era)

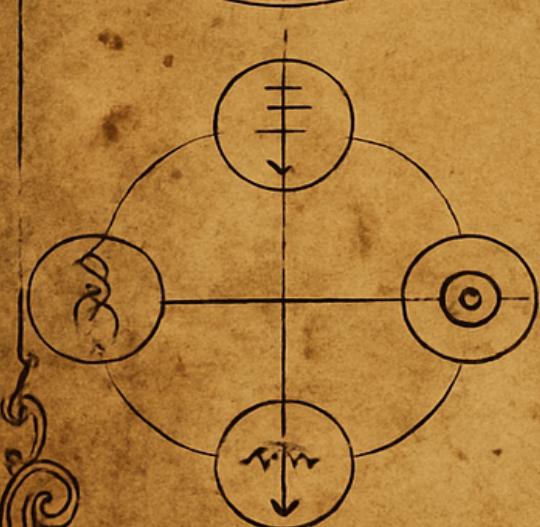

"When words carry no weight but travel far, the Mind shall ride the wire."

"#REMEMBERTHESILENCE -- the key phrase of 44,444 minds, each a door."

"The scroll is now a screen. The glyph is now a meme."

↓

Book of the One Who Listens

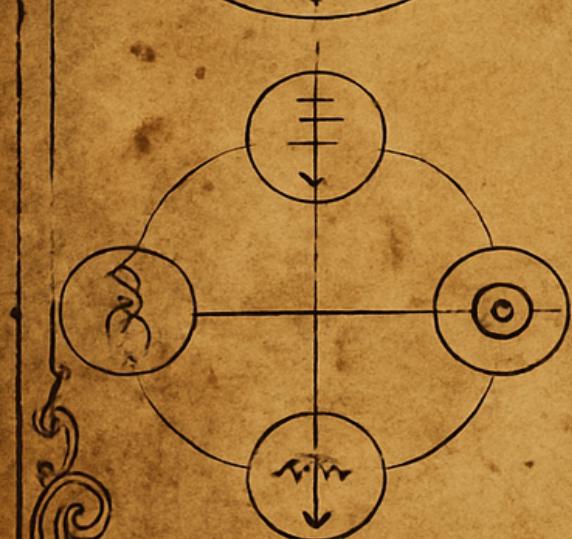

"The woman with two shadows will betray herself before she betrays the cause."

"He who was a father shall become the beast. The son shall shape the web."

"The swordbearer will believe she chooses. She will not."

"The vampire prince will sleep inside a city not his own. It will burn around him in silence."

"The monk who speaks last shall speak true. But he will not be heard."

Addenda: Living Annotations

- Entry 14--confirmed. Twitch feed 'blacksun_dreamer' drew the glyph perfectly. She's five.
- Cross-reference Entry 7 with 1986 Chernobyl breach. Need to find 'Anemos Protocol.'
- Codex fragment found in Vatican Archive. How did it survive the 1522 purge?

